SPECIMEN COPIES.

Of the CHRONICLE Mailed free to any address on application.

Dry Goods.

Messrs. Rayl & Boyd have everything in the dry goods line that can be called for.

For Sale.

The Sweetwater Enterprise is offered for sale, but if nobody buys it, Woodward says he'll run it straight along.

A Deserved Compliment.

Rev. A. W. Wilson, Rev. Perez D. Cowan, and Prof. John K. Payne were admitted to the degree of Master of Arts of East Tennessee University.

Wielding the Quill.

Lieut. J. Scott Payne, late of Knoxville, has taken charge of the Holston Journal, published at Rogersville. Lieut. P. wields a graceful pen, as the readers of the Journal are aware.

Appreciated.

As an evidence that the CHRONICLE is appreciated, we will state that a gentleman residing in a neighboring town who has been a subscriber to the New York daily Tribune for the last sixteen years, discontinued it yesterday and subscribed for the DAILY CHRONICLE.

Another Warning.

The Athens Post says that R. W. Bice, who lives on the south side of McMinn county, accidentally shot himself, last Sunday, with a pistol which he was carrying in the pocket of his pants. The wound though severe, and likely to somewhat impair the man's future usefulness, is not considered by the physician in attendance as necessarily fatal.

Off for Europe.

Prof. Payne takes his departure to-day for New York, whence he will proceed to Europe. The Professor has been commissioned by Gen. Cox, Secretary of the Interior, and Gen. Eaton, to collect school statistics of the different countries he visits. This selection is a most excellent one, and shows the high esteem in which Prof. Payne is held by the Government and friends of education.

Public Ceremonies.

There will be a public installation of the officers of Holston Division, No. 18, Sons of Temperance, at the Holston (Baptist) Church, two miles south of the river, on Saturday, the 2nd day of July. Addresses pertinent to the occasion will be delivered by Rev. T. H. Russell and other gentlemen. A full turn-out of the brethren is expected, as well as a pleasant time.

Montvale Springs.

Prof. Charles Haynes, well known to the lovers of music in this city has been engaged for the season to discourse sweet sounds at Montvale Springs. Prof. J. T. Lowery will also make these Springs his headquarters during the season. Lovers of pleasure cannot fail to have a good time. The proprietor, Mr. J. L. King, keeps the tables supplied with all obtainable luxuries, and knows how to make his guests feel comfortable.

Our Paper.

Not a day passes without bringing large additions to our subscription list, and frequently we are compelled to await the next issue before entering the names of new subscribers, notwithstanding we generally print a large number of extra copies for sale. That's just what we want to see, and if our friends will continue in well doing, our list will soon be as large as reasonable men could desire. We intend making the CHRONICLE the best paper in East Tennessee, if it isn't so already.

The Reason.

An objector to popular education, a few days ago, asked the editor of the Elizabeth City North Carolinian "what right has the State to organize a system of public instruction?" Dr. Johnson replied that "it does so for the reason that its own preservation demands intelligence in the voter. The State is the creature of a vote, and the vote must not be blind. Hence the State is deeply interested in the subject of education, and cannot afford to neglect those who are growing up to be its citizens. It was a great stride forward for old North Carolina when she inaugurated her system of free public instruction." The same might be said of Tennessee, if our legislators acted right.

Closing Exercises of Miss C. G. Anderson's School.

The entire exhibition was splendidly managed, and showed beyond a doubt that Miss Anderson has acquired the rare accomplishment of gaining the affections of her pupils, hence their proficiency in their studies. Those present who are capable of appreciating such an exhibition, will agree with us that it has not been excelled by anything of a similar nature ever witnessed in this city.

J. P. Galbraith.

By reference to another column, it will be seen that this gentleman is announced as a candidate for Attorney General in the 2d Judicial Circuit. When the late war broke out, Mr. Galbraith left East Tennessee, and enlisted in the 2d Tennessee Infantry, then being recruited in Kentucky, as a private soldier. He was afterwards promoted to the position of Adjutant of his regiment. He served three years, and was honorably mustered out. Since the war he has been a Republican in politics, having served in Jefferson county as a Sub-Elector on the Grant and Colfax electoral ticket.

Manufactories.

There are several gentlemen in this city from Ohio, connected with some of the largest manufacturing establishments in the country. They express themselves as highly pleased with our people and the country, and we hope their opinion will be so favorable as to induce the establishment of a branch manufactory in Knoxville. We learn that steps in that direction are being taken by some of our prominent citizens, and sincerely trust that the benefits to be derived from such an undertaking, will be made sufficiently manifest as to induce an embarkation into the enterprise. Success is sure to follow, and when the experiment prospers, others will soon follow.

Teachers' Convention.

The teachers' convention assembled yesterday morning, Mr. Summers, of Morristown, in the chair, and Prof. R. L. Kirkpatrick acting as Secretary.

The chief subject under discussion was the free school system, which occupied the greater part of the day. The theme was ably argued, but while all were in favor of a free school system, each had his own peculiar views. Some were in favor of rigid discipline; others in favor of mixed schools, while more thought it best to keep the boys and girls separate. A vote was taken on the question and the sense of the meeting was that the affirmative was the best method.

A permanent organization was effected, after which the convention adjourned.

Taken Aback.

It is customary in this city to pay off the railroad employees monthly, and knowing this fact, and that the men are prompt in paying their liabilities, their credit is good wherever asked. One of the railroad boys rather bluffed a too greedy creditor a short time ago, whom he encountered just as his name was called to be paid off. He was profuse in his greeting, but the railroad gentleman asked to be excused until he could sign the pay-roll, and after doing so shortly reappeared with his money in his hand, when he asked what he wanted to see him about? At the sight of the money the creditor's eye sparkled, and imagining his account already settled, blandly remarked, "Nothing in particular; I merely wished to inquire after your health." "Thank you," replied the imperturbable boy, cramming his money in his pocket, "my health's first rate," and he walked off leaving the fellow looking the picture of amazement, as though a large sized insect of jumping proclivities had penetrated his auricular organ.

The Wife.

Both before and after she has become a matron, will find PLANTATION BITTERS literally a present help in time of trouble; and under no circumstances or condition, can it prove otherwise than beneficial. During nursing it may be taken as an invigorant, with great advantage both to mother and infant; and, when maternal anxiety is awakened by the falling appetite, unnatural languor, and general indisposition of a delicate daughter, there is no tonic or alternative which will work such a rapid and healthful change in the condition of the fair invalid as Plantation Bitters. For this morning lassitude and depression of spirits, caused by late hours and what is called fashionable dissipation, there is nothing comparable to this famous vegetable restorative.

Persons who have once tasted Blanc Mango Puddings, Custards or Creams made from Sea Moss, Farine, and served with good rich cream or milk, will never need coaxing to use it, as it makes one of the most delicious, nutritious, economical, and health-giving articles of food ever provided by a bountiful Providence.

The Spencerian Commercial College.
 Conducted by Eli W. Scott & Co., Knoxville, Tennessee, will be opened July 1st, 1870. A thorough and practical business education can be obtained at this Institution. A full corps of experienced and efficient instructors will have charge of the different departments. See specimens of penmanship of the postoffice and book stores. Apply, for the present, to J. V. BRADFORD, (Box 318) Knoxville, Tenn.

Rev. G. W. LeVere's School.
 We had occasion to pass the above named Sabbath School on Sabbath last. The windows being open, giving us a fair view, we were really surprised at the large attendance, the orderly conduct and general appearance of the scholars. They sang well, and their general deportment gave evidence of the reverend gentleman's capacity to control as well as teach the young idea.

Complimentary.

At the adjournment of the Circuit Court, yesterday, the Grand Jury asked for the reading of the following paper, which was done by the Clerk:

We, the undersigned, composing the Grand Jury at the June term, 1870, of the Circuit Court of Knox county, take this method of returning our thanks to Hon. E. T. Hall for the courtesy and forbearance shown us during our service at the present term of the Court. We are also indebted to Col. J. M. Thornburgh, Attorney General, for efficient services rendered us, and a commendable zeal in bringing to the bar of justice those who would violate laws, and disregard the rights of individuals and communities. We would not forget to thank our efficient officer, Deputy Sheriff M. W. Huffaker, for faithful attention to his duties. In behalf of the county, we desire to commend the fidelity, zeal and general deportment of the officers mentioned, and will take leave of them with feelings of kindness, congratulating the people upon their good fortune in securing the services of such efficient officers.

(COMMUNICATED.)

Mr. Editor: There is a very great desire in the several counties of the Second Congressional District for Major John L. Murphy to become a candidate for Congress. If so, he will receive the warm support of many voters, especially in the good old county of Blount.

Letter from "Myron."

HUNTSVILLE, SCOTT CO., TENN., June 10, 1870.

Circuit Court is over. The Court has "risen" from the breakfast table, just finished blowing up some attorneys who have detained him about a bill of exceptions, and is about to take the saddle and strike out for his home in Cocke county.

The State's Attorney is thinking of Jefferson county again, and the rest of the bar of divers homes in various parts of East Tennessee. The people have scattered, and Ale Hatfield stalks almost solitary through the town, the resounding tramp of his wooden leg bidding defiance to the infernal revenue department in general, and his late miscegenous captor, Deputy Marshal John Slover, in particular.

Judge Randolph and Attorney General Dewey arrived on Monday, and have been very busy ever since till the close of court business last night. This is the first term for either of them at Huntsville, but they have made a very favorable impression on the people, and will doubtless do finely at the coming election.

The diligent and meritorious Gorrymandering of our wise (3) and patriotic (10) General Assembly makes it difficult for the mountain counties to know, from one week to another, where they belong. The court before this was held by Judge Goodpasture, of the 5th Circuit, and after he was gone it was discovered that before he opened court the county had been transferred to the 2d Circuit. Where it will be next it is impossible to tell.

Mr. James C. Parker, the late able and efficient Superintendent of Public Instruction for Scott county, and more recently a member of the Constitutional Convention, is busily engaged in taking the census.

Scott is as ever all right politically. Three years ago she gave Brownlow every vote but seven and Maynard every vote but four—that, too, with only one disfranchised man in the whole county. As an earnest of what she will do, she sends this week a club of subscribers to the CHRONICLE.

A surveying party, in the employ of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad Company, is in Scott this week looking out a route for a Knoxville connection. Success to their labors. MYRON.

Meeting in Hancock County.

At a meeting of citizens of Hancock county on the first Monday in June, at the courthouse in the town of Sneedville, after public proclamation at the courthouse door, the people assembled and the Hon. Joseph Baker was called to the Chair and ex-Sheriff McHenry Bray was appointed Secretary. The Chair explained the object of the meeting, whereupon, on motion of E. M. Turner, one man from each civil district was appointed as a committee to select three suitable persons to act as delegates to the convention to be held at Greenville, on the 24th inst.

The committee retired, after a consultation, having selected McHenry Bray, Joseph Brooks and Jesse P. Nichols as delegates to attend the convention, with instructions, if possible, to secure the nomination of H. C. Smith, for Chancellor; Hon. E. E. Gillemwaters, for Circuit Judge; and A. H. Pettibone for Attorney General—the committee being satisfied that it will accord with the wishes of the majority of the citizens of the county.

On motion, the proceedings were ordered to be published in the KNOXVILLE CHRONICLE, and the Greenville and Jonesboro papers were also requested to copy.

Whereupon the meeting adjourned.

McHENRY BRAY, Secretary.

Important Resolutions.

At the Temperance Convention held at Cleveland, Tennessee, on the 13th of June, 1870, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted and ordered published:

WHEREAS, It is exceedingly important to the prosperity of the Temperance cause that the Sons of Temperance should receive the co-operation of all good men, and especially those who exercise a large influence in the communities in which they live; therefore,

1. Resolved, That this convention earnestly invite all the ministers of the Gospel in our country to aid us by training with the order, and thus giving to the cause the benefit of their influence, and by preaching frequently on the subject to their respective charges.

2. Resolved, That we respectfully suggest to all public men that, as lovers of our common country, they owe a duty to the movement in which we are engaged, and earnestly request them to labor with us in the effort to deliver our people from the curse of intemperance.

3. Resolved, That we appeal to all Superintendents and teachers in the Sunday-schools of our land to give us their help, by training the youthful mind aright in reference to this matter; and that we heartily recommend to them to provide, in connection with the books and papers in use, a sound temperance literature for the children placed under their charge.

J. L. PIERCE, Secretary.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following are the transfers of real estate registered in the office of the County Clerk for the week ending June 20th, 1870:

S. H. Davis to John M. Davis, two tracts of land in Knox county, $6,150.
 Louis David et al. to Emile Frank, lot in Knoxville, $8,000.
 A. S. Hudiburg to A. S. Hudiburg, lot in Knoxville, $475.
 J. B. Hoxie to Tarwater & Ambrose, lot in Knoxville, $475.

Our Firemen.

The members of Fountain Fire Company, No. 1, are a clever set of fellows, and are always prompt in the hour of danger; but like many other organizations and individuals, are troubled with impecuniosity. They want a uniform, and a committee is now out with a list of soliciting subscriptions. We hope our citizens will respond liberally, for there are no more deserving class than those noble-hearted self-sacrificing firemen.

Farming Implements.

The harvest is approaching and some of our agricultural friends are preparing for it. Messrs. Mabry, Turner & Co., on yesterday sold three reaping and mowing machines, and a tornado blower. The farmers see their house advertised and know where to make their purchases.

Bill-Heads.

If you want Bill-Heads gotten up in the best style, go to the CHRONICLE'S Job office.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NASHVILLE.

Interesting Report as to its Condition and Prospects.

Dr. J. B. Lindsey, Chancellor of the University of Nashville, has prepared a very interesting and important report with regard to the condition and prospects of the University of Nashville.

After a brief history of the origin of the University, which dates as far back as 1806, the Chancellor states that the endowment fund now amounts to $50,000, invested in Tennessee bonds, the annual income being $2,300. The Board now finds itself with large and valuable college buildings, most beautifully situated within the limits of a wealthy, refined and growing city; and with an income from its college fund not sufficient to pay one-half the salary of the principal or head of the institution, as such officers are well paid. While to the popular eye the institution is wealthy, its buildings and grounds attracting universal attention, it is really poor, very poor. Its endowment is utterly inadequate even to the keeping in repair its large and costly buildings, apparatus, etc. It has always depended, and must for years continue to depend, upon tuition fees for the payment of its corps of teachers.

Notwithstanding that the grammar school now conducted by the board is so completely organized, and has been highly useful, the Chancellor says the reason why it must fail, is because the board is already beginning to bring the University in debt. Even if the board had the legal right to appropriate the income of the College fund to the support of a grammar school, still the slenderness of the foundation would surely cause a failure in less than five years. He holds it to be utopian, utterly utopian, to attempt the maintenance of a school for the humanities without a large and productive endowment; that it cannot be done in the thinly populated Southwest, where the great majority of the inhabitants early devote themselves to the practical pursuits of life; that it is not even attempted in the densely populated and very wealthy region of the Northeast, where fifty thousand dollars is esteemed but a moderate endowment for a professor's chair in colleges which also charge their pupils handsome tuition fees. To make an independent, permanent, successful college, upon the English model, the one thing, without which all else is absolutely vain and fruitless, is an endowment, always and truthfully styled the foundation.

The above extracts constitute a suggestive commentary upon the propositions of certain feeble wisacres in regard to University education, to plunder the East Tennessee University of its Agricultural College fund, and to divide the fund among three or more institutions in as many sections of the State.

It is the notion of these wise men that a University differs only in name from a good county academy, and that it can be maintained as cheaply. Give them a log school house, a black-board, and one supernumerary old teacher, and they will construct you a university at any cross-roads in the State.

Time was, when the world and the United States were younger, that what were called universities could be maintained upon small capital. That time is past, as the experience of the last fifty years ought to have taught us. We have been maintaining in this State a score, more or less, of colleges without endowments, libraries or apparatus, and with each a little corps of three or four, or perhaps half a dozen teachers. These colleges have done a noble work for our State; but what have we done for them? We have suffered them to languish and dwindle at a "poor dying rate," without a thought of adding to their means of usefulness. Meanwhile private munificence has gone on, providing for universities like Yale and Harvard, and a score of others, magnificent endowments and apparatus in the same way, and we would sink the aggregate fund of all the colleges in this State. And we sit still and wonder that our young men will insist upon going to the universities of other States to be educated; and with solemn wisdom we propose to take the only fund which has ever existed in the State, approximating to a reasonable college endowment, and to endow therewith three County Academies—Agricultural—College—Universities. Can anything be more impracticable? One hundred thousand dollars will endow two professorships, and we can have three magnificent Universities with two professors each, and libraries, cabinets and apparatus in the same magnificent proportion. Then certainly our young men need go abroad for their education no longer. They will rush in crowds to the three magnificent universities, with the three pairs of professors; we will triumphantly compete with the Universities of Virginia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Michigan, and show these old fogy institutions that we can lead the world in getting up cheap universities.

Fellow-citizens of Tennessee, and you, Oh University-tinkering politicians, it won't do. A single hat does very well for one man, but one-third of a hat for each of three men is far from being equally useful. If it is so forwarded that East Tennessee is entitled to no rights in this matter, why take the fund and make good use of it. But don't stuff yourselves, and make the State ridiculous, by practicing long division upon it, and setting up three scarecrow universities in our midst to call down derision on their flapping rags.
